Citizens Committee Makes Many Road Recommendations

Eighty-two miles of four lane, 40 foot highway pavement, the biggest frame expansion project attempted by any county in the United States since automobile congestion made road widening imperative, has been recommended by the Cook County citizens highway advisory committee appointed by President Anton J. Cermak of the Cook county board as the chief building task of the 1928 program, according to the first report made by the commission's sub-committees.

Tuesday, Nov. 1st was the final date set for the receipt of sub-committee recommendations.

In addition to widening of nine old familiar highways and the building of four new routes to a width of 40 feet, the recommendations are expected to include the laying of 20-foot pavements in twenty-nine important county roads which are now either unpaved or surfaced with stone and the laying of twenty-seven miles of 20-foot pavement strips by the county on twelve Chicago and village gateway streets which form connections for new county pavements. This will bring the program to be built separately, by Cook county in 1928 at a cost of more than $10,000,000 to approximately 212 miles, while Illinois state forces are widening and laying new 20-foot pavements on many additional miles of main roads in the county.

Important additions to the safety and congestion relief features of this record building program lie in the plans for the elevation of the Illinois Central railroad tracks on the west side to eliminate nine dangerous grade crossings; the building of a highway grade separation similar to that now operating in Lincoln park in the north section of the county, and the joint state and county construction of a three way grade separation at the intersections of Archer avenue, 79th street and state route 51 near Justice. The advisory commission has adopted resolutions urging the Illinois Central to extend the track elevation which now protects motorists on Roosevelt and Mannheim roads all the way from the Cook county line southeast to and over Oak Park avenue. This elevation extension would eliminate the grade crossings now existing at Oak Park avenue, Harlem avenue, 26th street, 22nd street, 1st avenue Broadway, 17th avenue, Harrison street, Wolf Road and Butterfield road. President Cermak has indicated that the board will rush through proceedings for a two level intersection on county owned right of way northwest of the city and that the county and state will press the work for the big grade separation, bridges and viaducts on the southwest side.

Among the new 40 foot roads recommended, the Southwest highway, to extend from Eighty-seventh street and Crawford avenue southwest along the Wabash railroad through Oak Lawn, Chicago Ridge, Worth, Palos Park, and Orland Park to Cook County line, there to meet a 40 foot slab to be built by Will county into Joliet, and the Harlem avenue 40 foot pavement from Waukegan road straight south to the Joliet road are considered the most important projects for through traffic. The Southwest highway embraces about 22 miles of new pavement and the Harlem avenue strips to hook up existing pavements about 6 miles. On the north four and one-half miles of new 40 foot paving on West Railroad avenue from McCormick road north, and one and one-half miles of wide slab on Devon avenue, from Milwaukee avenue to Cicero avenue, are being considered.

Pavement widening to 40 feet on the west side will include nine miles of the Des Plaines river road via First avenue, Maywood, from Devon avenue on the north to Roosevelt road on the south, and 4.5 miles of Irving Park boulevard, from Ridgeland avenue to Mannheim road. On the south side the widening recommendations already adopted include 4 miles of 95th street, from Western avenue to the Southwest highway; 2.5 miles of the Dixie highway, from Sibley to South Park ave-

Cook County Road Bonds Sell At Neat Premium

Road bonds sold by the board of county commissioners Monday amounted to $2,700,000 went to the Illinois Merchants Trust company at a premium of $6,750. The bonds are retired in twenty years and receive 4 per cent interest.

A contract for the Kerr bridge to be constructed in Harvey, Ill., across the sanitary canal, was let to the lowest bidder, the Joliet Bridge and Construction Co. for $12,186.88. Other contracts let were for the widening of the Lake avenue bridge, north of Glen View, to the Davidson Doctor Construction company for $1,869 and for the construction of two culverts on the Palatine road to the Oltendorf Construction company for $1,137.

Torrens Law to be Printed. Bids for the printing of 75,000 pamphlets containing information about the Torrens law and the decisions of the Supreme court under that law were authorized by the board. The pamphlet was compiled by Scott Matthews, chief examiner of titles in Cook county. The Torrens law provides for a system of land registration.

A report from J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency engineer, on the Cook county school for boys recommended that an institute for the study of delinquency be established at the school. The report was referred to the finance committee.

Among the road and bridge taxes for 1928 levied by highway commissioners of the various townships of the county, were the following:

Bremen	$20,500.00
Orland	7,400.00
Palos	5,000.00
Worth	26,008.62

Mokena Needs Police Protection

Since Mokena has been without police protection all kinds of petty thieving has been going on. Last Wednesday night while the village board was in session in one part of town, robbers robbed the Harvey Reab market in another part of town.

Early Wednesday morning the hardware store of the Mokena Hardware Co., was burglarized and two shot guns stolen. These two robberies coming within a week would indicate that home talent is at the bottom of these robberies. The citizens feel that the village is sadly in need of some kind of police protection. The trouble however, lies in getting someone to take the police officer's job. If the law breaking activities continue the village council will have to take some kind of action to police the village. No one is safe from being held up by day or night if these conditions continue to exist. Law and order must be enforced.

Father Theodore Is Transferred To Cleveland, Ohio

Father Theodore of St. John's Catholic church of Joliet who has been serving the St. Mary's parish at Mokena the past three years, has been transferred to a large parish in Cleveland, Ohio. In the new field he is the only English speaking priest and will have an important part in teaching 980 children of the parish.

The members of St. Mary's parish were deeply grieved when they learned that the priest whom they had learned to love so much was to leave them. At the service Sunday morning St. Mary's was crowded to capacity by the parishioners who came to hear Father Theodore preach his farewell sermon. As a token of the esteem in which they held him they presented him with a purse containing $57.00.

During his charge of the parish Father Theodore did much good work. St. Mary's church was remodeled, a new hall was built and the parish purchased a $1500 auto for their priest, and all of this has been paid for and there is a neat surplus in the treasury.

Father Roman has been named as the successor to Father Theodore.

On the north about 16 miles of widening is being considered on Waukegan, Demster street, Milwaukee, and Green Bay roads.

WANT BRICK DEPOT WALK A petition has been circulated in Mokena asking the Rock Island to put in a brick walk in front of the local depot. Quite a number of signers were secured to this petition.

Mokena and New Lenox Stores Are Visited by Robbers

About three o'clock Wednesday morning robbers smashed three large panes of glass in the show window of the Mokena Hardware Store and escaped with two shot guns which they took from the hunting display in the window. Nothing else was missed from first reports.

The Groth family living across the street heard the crash of the breaking glass but thought there was an auto collision and did not pay any further attention.

Families living above the hardware store did not hear anything and did not know that the store had been burglarized until the store was opened for business.

The guns were valued at $40 but the biggest loss was in the breaking of the large windows on which no insurance was carried.

If any new shot guns are offered for sale or are being used in hunting by any suspicious persons the Mokena Hardware company should be notified.

Shortly after the Mokena store was burglarized, the store of Geo. C. Petersen at New Lenox was also broken into and a number of flashlights stolen. In that case the same as at Mokena a display window was smashed and the flashlights were taken from this window. Kinney Hilton residing across the street from the Petersen store heard the sound of breaking glass and turned on his porch light and saw a gray painted Chevrolet car hastily drive westward on the Lincoln highway toward Joliet.

The Petersen store at New Lenox has been robbed three times within a few months.

It is thought that the robbers may have been connected with a murder at Hammond which occurred the fore part of the week when an officer was shot. The murder car was abandoned at Calumet city and it was thought the murder gang was headed this way.

Debate New School For Mokena

The first move to start sentiment in favor of a new public school for Mokena was made Wednesday night when a debate on the question whether Mokena should have a new school house or not was held at the Brotherhood meeting at the St. John's Evangelical church. The affirmative side won out by a big majority.

Those on the affirmative side were: Mrs. J. V. Hall, Nicholas Heiman, Principal Lively and Dr. E. G. McMahon.

Those on the negative side were: W. N. Lathorn, Frank Hirsch, Jr., Leon Tonn and Mrs. Florence Laufner.

The judges were: Ona E. McGovern, Mrs. Herman Schweser, Mrs. Arthur Hall.

Mokena M. E. Church 60 Yrs. Old

The Mokena M. E. congregation is making quite elaborate plans for the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the local M. E. church which was dedicated on December 15, 1867. A three day program is being planned.

The M. E. Ladies Aid society will meet with Mrs. Rose Moriarty next Thursday afternoon, Nov. 10.

Think This Over

A mistaken idea with some people is that the newspaper is an individual proposition. If they don't like the editor, they feel they must knock the paper and stand in the way of its success, whenever possible. They do not realize that the local paper is just as much a part of the community as the schools, churches or anything else. The newspaper is different from any other business, it is a community affair. It is for service to the people and not for any individual.

You may not like the editor and the editor may not like you any too well-but the paper he is responsible for does just as much for you as the service rendered others. There is nothing personal with it; it is here for a purpose and that purpose is to do what good it can in every way it can and the greater the support of those it undertakes to serve the better service it can render. It takes the people to make a good newspaper and without the help of the people no one can run a successful newspaper. It requires money to operate any kind of business, even the churches and the papers are no exception, and for this reason they must have the financial support of the business interests as well as the good will.

Hundreds Attend R. N. A. Meet At Frankfort Wed.

The third annual county convention of the Royal Neighbors of America was held in Frankfort, Wednesday afternoon and evening Oct. 26, with over 300 members of Will county camps in attendance. Visitors were also present from camps in Grundy and Cook counties. The gathering was held in the Frankfort Hall which was prettily decorated with autumn flowers and foliage and purple and white.

Mrs. Katherine Warning, county orator, presided. The address of welcome was given by Mrs. Lydia Vollrath of Frankfort and the response was made by Celia Morgan of Joliet. The convention next year will be held in Manhattan. Officers elected for the ensuing year were: Mrs. Sophia Mundt, orator; Mrs. Sadie Stadel, vice-orator; Mrs. Ethel Headburg, recorder; Mrs. Katherine Warning, past orator; Mrs. Mildred Roberts and Mrs. Eliza Platt, marshals and assistant marshals; Mrs. Lillian Morton and Mrs. Louisa Morrison, inner and outer sentinels.

A memorial service was conducted by Oak Leaf Camp of Joliet. A school of instruction was directed by Mrs. Laura E. Brumagin of East St. Louis, supreme auditor. The juvenile departments of the Frankfort camp gave a demonstration after which dinner was served at six o'clock in the Evangelical church parlors. Tables were decorated in Halloween colors. The evening session opened at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Brumagin and Mrs. Stella Daley, deputy, were escorted by the juvenile department. Initiatory work was exemplified by the Frankfort camp.

The following program was given: Solos by Arthur Lambrecht; piano duets Lulu Breidert and Vera Osmus; vocal solos, Stanley Warning; readings, Phyllis Baumgartner; songs; a mock wedding presented by the juvenile department in which members of the Frankfort camp took part and which was very comical and created a lot of laughter at the way they were dressed and acted. Piano solos by Miss Lillian Norton of Chicago Heights after which the Frankfort drill team took in five new members.

Illness Fatal to Mrs. H. Siebrandt

Mrs. Henry Siebrandt residing southwest of Tinley Park died very suddenly at her home at three o'clock Wednesday morning after a brief illness caused by gall stones. She is survived by her husband and nine children. Further details regarding obituary will appear in the next week's issue.

Advertising

Advertising in the newspaper is one of the great factors in the success of modern business. Some may think that the whole object of advertising is to quote lower prices than someone else but this is a wrong idea. The object of advertising is to increase one's business and the way to advertise is to create a desire in the minds of the readers to possess the article that is for sale.

It is highly advantageous to local merchants to handle nationally advertised merchandise and through local advertising inform the public they have these goods for sale. There are many articles that are advertised in all the large magazines that people want to buy and do not know where to get them and if the local merchant will stock them and let people know they have them the local merchant will get the business. It is not a question of cut prices, as most all nationally known goods sell at the same price everywhere, it is in the people being able to buy the goods right here at home. The merchant who handles the well known goods and lets his community know it, will come out ahead and is also cashing in on the advantage of thousands of dollars spent in advertising being done by the advertisers.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT

A noteworthy bit of civic improvement is being noted at Mokena. Crushed stone is being placed in the parking places around the St. John Evangelical, Immanuel Lutheran and Methodist churches. The vacant lot marking the site of the former old St. John church is also coming in for attention. This lot has been overgrown with weeds and heaped up with rubbish and has been an eye sore for some time. It has been cleaned up and is being filled with crushed stone and converted into an additional parking square. Fine work! more of it.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: it is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

Paul Muller, a German youth of seventeen years, is serving a jail sentence of four months on a charge of burglary, at Shaighai, China. Police refer to Muller as a "walking arsenal and bar." When arrested he was weighted down with 750 rounds of ammunition, two pistols, 18 bottles of beer, two bottles of whisky, one bottle of gin, six bottles of soda water, two tumblers, six forks, six knives and eight claret glasses. Muller said he "found" the goods.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Gripe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole. Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Eight elections including the primaries will be held in the state of Illinois in 1928, according to the annual election calendar which has just been prepared by Secretary of State Emerson. Interest centers on the statewide primary election to be held on April 10 and the general election November 6, 1928. Among the officers to be nominated next April are governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, auditor, attorney general, two congressmen-at-large, one representative in each of the twenty-five districts of the state, senators in the even-numbered districts and three members of the general assembly in each senatorial district.

Primary day will also bring about the selection of two delegates and alternate delegates from each congressional district to the national nominating conventions; state senatorial and precinct committeemen, and in addition voters will express themselves with respect to candidates for President.

According to an opinion handed down by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlistrom, electrocutions under the statute of the last session of the general assembly must take place in the old section of the state penitentiary at Joliet and in the Southern Illinois penitentiary at Menard. The opinion was given at the request of Roy Ide, director of the state department of welfare. The question had arisen whether executions in the electric chair might take place in the new prison at Stateville. The act specifies the penitentiary at Joliet and also the one at Menard.

Bids for the construction of several miles of hard roads, together with bridge and grading sections, have been received by the state department of public works and buildings. The pavement sections are as follows:

Route 14, section 11, White county, 4.25 miles; route 14, section 12, White county, 4.50 miles; route 18, section 13E, Kendall county, .21 mile; route 128, section 72, DeKalb, Kane county, 2.7 miles; route 81, section 101, Henry county, 4.97 miles; route 116, section 113, Livingston county, 7.31 miles; route 116, section 114, Livingston county, 6.83 miles.

The grading sections are in St. Clair, Vermilion, Henry and Monroe counties. The bridge sections are in Alexander, Pulaski, Cook, Henry, Vermilion, DeKalb-Kane, Livingston and Monroe counties.

The division of highways has awarded the contract for the pavement on route 126, section 116E, Montgomery county, to the Watt Construction company, Winchester, for $21,988.50.

Calhoun county waited for 109 years for a visit from a governor, but not until a few days ago had a governor ever set foot in the county which has no steam railroad and which is bounded on the west by the Mississippi river and on the east by the Illinois river. Governor Small recently attended a celebration of the opening of State Highway No. 38 between Hardin and Kampsville. Six thousand people attended the celebration. The new road, ten miles long, built along the Illinois river with a great deal of difficulty, gives the county its first connection with the state highway system. Governor Small has instructed the state highway department to draw up plans for a bridge across the Illinois river in an effort to break down the isolation of Calhoun county.

The State Supreme court recently upheld the act of the last legislature raising the salaries of county judges in the state when it handed down its decision in four consolidated cases. The act raised the judges' pay according to the population of counties. When refused increased pay, judges in Adams, Union, St. Clair and Iroquois counties sued to mandamus their county treasurers for the raise. The high court granted their consolidated petitions under which writs of mandamus were issued against the treasurers, compelling them to make out larger checks for the judges. The provision of the act raising probate judges' pay was not passed upon by the court.

State Representative William Weiss, Waukegan, serving his fourth term in the general assembly, died of apoplexy on October 18 at his home while talking to Congressman-at-Large Henry Rathbone. Mr. Weiss was born in Chicago in 1875 and started his business career as a newsboy, later being employed in the Cook county treasurer's office. He was an assistant attorney general under Edward J. Brundage.

Ida M. Tarbell, nationally known authoress of many books on the life of Abraham Lincoln, paid the capitol city a visit recently in her search for new material on the great emancipator. Miss Tarbell was particularly interested in the research work that had been done in the past five years by the Lincoln Centennial association and other organizations. Miss Tarbell admitted that she was planning another book on the immortal Lincoln, but she refused to say when her newest venture would be ready for release.

The Illinois department of public works and buildings is sustained in its policy with reference to changes in road routings to avoid grade crossings in a decision handed down by the State Supreme court a few days ago. The finding was given in a case involving condemnation of land for carrying a road through private property on Route 44 between Milledgeville and Stockton, which attacked the constitutionality of the commission's action on the ground that the authority exercised was not in conformity with the purpose of the road law of 1917, as expressed in the title.

Flood conditions and needed relief in the Mississippi and Illinois river valleys will be considered at a meeting to be held in Washington during the month of November of the flood control committee, of which Congressman Frank Reid, Aurora, is chairman. The federal government has already included the Illinois river, from its mouth to Beardstown, as a part of the Mississippi flood control project. Major Wild, one of the army engineers who are studying the problem, stated recently that it had been determined that the Mississippi river affects the Illinois as far north as Beardstown and therefore that this section of it had been included in the study of the problem of flood control.

In an opinion given to State Auditor Oscar Nelson, Attorney General Carlistrom declares that there are three flaws in the biennial omnibus bill passed by the general assembly. They include three appropriation items which do not come under the title of the act, as provided by the constitution, and are consequently invalid. The items which cannot be paid are: Excess cost of educating crippled children in School District No. 113, Peoria county, for year 1925, $276; to R. H. Musick, compensation for medical attention due to injuries received while an employee of the state, $700; war compensation to Lester W. Simpson, father of a deceased World war veteran, $300.

Five thousand delegates attended one of the largest conventions the capitol city has handled recently, from October 17 to 20. The delegates were attending the state convention of the three lodges of Odd Fellowship, the Illinois grand lodge, the Rebekah state assembly and the grand encampment. A huge parade, the convention ball and the Ancient Mystic Order Samaritans entertainment were prominent features of the convention.

NEW LAWS OF ILLINOIS

[This is a continuation of the list of bills that were passed by the Fifty-fifth general assembly and have received the signature of Governor Small, or have been allowed to become laws without his signature.]

House Bill 583 (Mariner). Relates to the incorporation, regulation and control of assessment life insurance companies. The kind of companies to which act applies are named. Provisions relate to organization of such companies, certificate of association, approval of same by director of trade and commerce, names of companies, their legal existence, corporate powers, procedure of organization, licensing, collection of premiums, domestic companies, guarantee funds, deposit of securities, contracts of life insurance, foreign companies, reserve assets, mortality tables, disability benefits, continuous and limited payment premiums, financial reports, foreign assessment companies, examination and supervision by director of trade and commerce, revocation of licenses, payment of fees, and provides for reorganization under this act of domestic assessment companies heretofore incorporated in Illinois.

House Bill 506 (Stanfield). An act to validate the organization and subsequent acts of certain drainage districts, where it appears that a petition for organization has been filed in accordance with section 76 of an act to provide for drainage for agricultural and sanitary purposes, etc., June 27, 1885, and an election has been held with the result that the district thereafter functioned as duly organized.

House Bill 570 (Juul). Amends section 60 of an act concerning land title, May 1, 1897. Provides that upon release of a mortgage, the mortgagee's duplicate certificate of title shall be canceled without the necessity of producing said mortgagee's duplicate. The fee for cancellation shall be $1. Present provision requires that mortgagee's duplicate certificate be surrendered to the registrar.

House Bill 576 (committee on judiciary). Amends section 56 of an act to revise the law in relation to counties. Provides that in counties of over 50,000 inhabitants where bonds have been authorized by an election held for the purpose of building roads, the proceeds may be used in aiding in the construction or widening of any highways or bridges in such county, including state roads and state aid roads therein.

House bill 584 (Browne.) Appropriates $10,000 to the department of public works and buildings for the purpose of acquiring the parcel of ground in the village of Troy Grove, LaSalle county, where and on which James Butler "Wild Bill" Hickok was born, or some other suitable ground in said village on which a monument shall be erected in his memory.

House Bill 580 (Elrod). An act authorizing and directing the department of public welfare to convey certain state-owned land in Cook county to the city of Chicago for street purposes.

Lesson for November 6

AMOS PLEADS FOR JUSTICE

LESSON TEXT—Amos 5:1-27.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let judgment run down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Treating Everybody Right.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Kind of Man God Hears.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Squaring for God Against the Crowd.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Conditions of Divine Approval.

I. Israel's Desolation Predicted (vv. 1-3).

Amos lamented over the doom which was to overtake the nation. Israel is called a virgin because she had never been subdued by any foreign nation (see Isa. 23:12). Her falling to rise no more sets forth the utter desolation and helplessness to which the Assyrians subjected the nation. From this captivity Israel never returned. Those who came back from the Babylonian captivity were largely from Egypt.

II. The Call to Return to God.
God through the prophet says, "seek ye me and ye shall live." The implication is that while the divine judgments are not executed, an opportunity is offered for them to turn to God. In their turning to God they were to renounce:

1. Idolatry (vv. 5, 6).

They were to turn away from the places of idolatry—Bethel, Gilgal and Beersheba. God's judgment was to strike these places.

If they would not come to Him for life He would be their destroyer. "Our God is a consuming fire." The only one who can give life to those who seek Him is the one who shall destroy.

2. Cease to pervert judgment (v. 7).

"Turn judgment to wormwood" implies the bitterness of the perversion of justice to the injured.

3. Cease to dethrone righteousness. "Leaving off righteousness" is thought to mean that unrighteousness was allowed to take its place. In this third exhortation the Lord's name is given with the following statement of some of His works:

1. "Maketh the seven stars and Orion;" 2. "Turneth the shadow of death into morning;" 3. "Maketh the day dark with night;" 4. "Calldeth for the waters of the sea and poureth them out upon the earth," both in rain and deluge; 5. "Strengthened the spoil against the strong."

III. The Sins Committed by the Wicked Nation (vv. 10-13).

1. They hated the judge who condemned their wicked practices (v. 10).

2. They abhorred him that spoke uprightly (v. 10).

This most likely referred to the prophets themselves who told them of their sins and urged uprightness of life.

3. They trampled upon the poor (v. 11).

The rich built magnificent houses out of the proceeds extorted from the poor.

4. They afflicted the just (v. 12).

This they did by taking a bribe.

5. They turned aside the poor in the gate (v. 12).

Because they had no money the poor were turned aside.

It was most difficult for the poor to get justice. The times were so evil that the prudent would best keep silence.

IV. The Conduct of the Righteous (vv. 14, 15).

No condition in the world, religious, social or political can become so difficult that the righteous are shut off from help. The righteous can:

1. Seek God (v. 14).

Those who seek good shall have with them the Lord God of Hosts.

2. Hate the evil (v. 15).

Evil must be hated. The sin question must be settled before God can bestow His blessings.

3. Establish judgment in the gate.

It was the custom in that day for the courts of justice to sit in the gate of the city. The prophet urges upon them the responsibility to place honorable men in charge of public affairs.

V. The Judgment to Fall (vv. 16-20).

There is coming a day of retribution. Justice and right shall be vindicated. This will be realized in the day of the Lord (II Thess. 1:7-10; James 5:7). All wrong shall be righted at that time. May we earnestly pray, "thy kingdom come."

VI. Worship Without Holiness of Life an Abomination to God (vv. 21-27).

Sacrifices, observance of feast days and singing, when the heart is out of fellowship with God, is most displeasing to Him.

Two Different Things

The love of God and the world are two different things. If the love of this world dwell in thee, the love of God forsakes thee; renounce that, and receive this; it is fit that the nobler love should have the best place and acceptance.

House Not Made With Hands

The tent-life is the true life until the building of God, the "house not made with hands," is reached.—Phillips Brooks.

Superiority of Brown Bread Is Questioned

Brownbrowsers and whitebrowsers are having a duel to the death in the British isles.

Sir Arbuthnot Lane and his health society are the champions of whole-wheat bread. The perpetually youthful Fannie Ward has also cast her lot with the anti-whites.

Fannie says she doesn't eat any bread, but if she did it would certainly not be white.

The millers of the British isles are furious about the brown-bread campaign, as charges have been made that the vitamins of class B are bleached out of white flour.

Sir George Newman, the chief medical officer of the ministry of health, and a number of other prominent physicians have aligned themselves with the whitebrowsers. Sir George says the extravagant claims put forth on behalf of brown bread are unconvincing and of trifling importance, as the all-essential point is that each person get a proper allowance of vitamins in his entire diet. Sir Thomas Horder, a celebrated British physician, takes similar ground.

Attention, Middle-Aged Women!

Fort Wayne, Ind.—"Dr. Pierce's medicines were a life saver to me at middle age. When I reached that period it seemed that I had all the ailments and distress that can come to a woman. My nerves gave way, I was so weak that some days I was not able to be on my feet at all. I had hot flashes, dizzy spells, backache and pains thru my sides.

I was a complete physical wreck when I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery'. These medicines soon ended the suffering and distress and brought me thru this critical period a strong healthy woman."—Mrs. Ida Jackman, 421½ Baker St.

Stock Frauds Lead All

Of all robberies of the public, that of the fraudulent salesman of stock is the greatest, credit men have determined. Loss from stock fraud is four times the loss from burglary, grand larceny and petty theft. It leads that of forgery ten times, and trade frauds four times. At the present rate it is large enough to pay off the national debt in 20 years.

Sewing Machines in Korea

American sewing machines are found in even the humblest cottages in the most remote Korean villages, says a report of the British consul general in Seoul.

Then It's All Over

Town 1,300 Years Old

The thirteen hundredth anniversary of the church and town of Dewsbury, Yorkshire, England, has been celebrated by special services in the parish church and a historical pageant. There is a local tradition that Paulinus visited Dewsbury in the year 627, the same year that he baptized King Edwin. The archbishop of York said recently, in referring to the tradition: "I dare to give it the force of history."

Some officeholders seem to forget the time when they were office-seekers.

Australia's now capital city, Canberra, is to be 12 miles square and is designed for a population of 2,000,000.

Too Much Soot

According to reliable estimates, enough soot and dirt float over American cities in one year to bury every street on Manhattan island to a depth of 21 feet. It would form a pyramid 1,500 feet high and five miles across at the base, if gathered into one large mass. These calculations have been prepared on actual measurements of the soot and smoke found in the air at different times of the year and over many different cities.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

ORLAND

The new Fords are expected to arrive at Hewson's Garage about the 15th of November.

The Cook county committee met with the Will County committee at the Woodruff Hotel, in Joliet, last week to discuss the Southwest highway a new forty foot road to extend from 87th st. and Crawford avenue southwest along the Wabash railroad through Oak Lawn, Chicago Ridge, Worth, Palos Park and Orland Park to the Will county line, there to meet a 40 foot road to be built by Will county into Joliet.

The Young folks of Orland Park enjoyed a very fine time Monday night at a Halloween party held in the parlors of the M. E. church.

The room was prettily decorated with the usual Halloween decorations. The evening was delightfully spent in playing all kinds of Halloween games, stunts, etc., at the close of the social festivities a luncheon was served. Rev. Povenmire, one of the assistants of the Rev. Paul T. Sanders, pastor of this church, was in charge of the social. The guests all thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Everything is set for the big bazaar to be held at St. Michael's church this week. On Saturday evening a big supper will be served at the church hall. The men are in charge of preparing and serving the big feed, a wonderful good menu is assured. The men of the parish demonstrated their ability as culinary artists last year, so there is no doubt but this year the menu will be equally as good if not better. Everybody invited. In addition to the supper there will be bazaar features and $100 in prizes will be distributed.

The St. Michael's hall has been decorated and much improved.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cure was baptised Sunday morning by Rev. Wm. Gorey, name given being Robert Philip, Jr. Mrs. Cure was formerly Augusta Steffen of Orland Park.

A fire broke out in the leaves on the Stoholuck farm west of Orland Park Monday night. Leaves and grass were only burned, the blaze being extinguished before it reached the other buildings. It is believed the fire was the result of a Halloween prank.

The usual Halloween ghosts and goblins stalked around Monday night, but no serious pranks are reported. A number of objects were hauled about and placed in front of business places. Soaping of windows went on two weeks before Halloween.

The Lions club held their monthly meeting and dinner in St. Michael's hall Thursday night of this week. A representative of the Chicago Motor Club was present and gave an address on the organization of a boy patrol.

Two women from Pullman brought suit against Thomas Davidson, Jr., charging he crashed into their car several weeks ago at 95th street and Harlem avenue. The case came up before Justice Gappa in Justice Park, who after hearing both sides of the case released Davidson with a fine of $1.00.

The county highway department has finished dressing 143rd street west of here with screenings.

The drainage ditch serving both Orland and Bremen townships is to be cleaned out soon. The ditch is 5 miles long.

Where Iris Is Found

There are about 875 species of Iris. They are chiefly natives of temperate climates. Iris versicolor, the large blue flag, is common in wet places throughout the United States as far west as Minnesota and Arkansas.

Poet's Error

Literally "derring do" means "daring to do." But Spenser mistakenly used it as a noun phrase and it has been popularly used ever since to mean daring feats or desperate courage. Spenser says: "Dread for his derring doe and bloody deed."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Producing Liquid Air

Liquid air is a transparent, limpid and intensely cold liquid, slightly blue in color, and of about the same density as water. It is prepared by subjecting air to great pressure and then cooling it by its own expansion to a temperature below the boiling point of its constituents (nitrogen, 194 degrees centigrade; oxygen, 183 degrees centigrade). Its chief use is as a refrigerant.

American Swedish Colony

Swedes established a colony in Delaware as early as 1638. They erected a fort on Christian creek and named the country New Sweden. They subsequently established a military post on the island of Tinicum, below Philadelphia.

OWNERSHIP

THE first prehistoric man to become a manufacturer owned his own tools—rough instruments of flint made with his own hands.

As industry developed and crude tools gave way to more costly and more complex machinery, men separated themselves into groups—owners of tools and users of tools. Out of this separation grew industrial problems, and in their solution, the trend has been toward a wider ownership of the tools of industry by those who use them.

Industry's most useful tool in America, the telephone, is owned by those it serves. Bell System securities are distributed among 800,000 investors, nearly all of whom are telephone users. The stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is held by more than 420,000 owners, and no individual owns as much as 1%. In this nationwide ownership of nationwide facilities, the tool owner and tool user are identical.

WAYS WITH FOODS

A delicious beginning for a dinner or luncheon is:

over the sirup and garnish with a sprig of fresh mint. Ginger sirup is well liked with muskmelon and bits of the preserved ginger may be used for garnish.

Brilliant Peppers.—Select large red peppers, cut into halves lengthwise, remove seeds and parboil for five minutes; drain, place in a buttered pan and fill with fresh mushrooms which have been cooked for five minutes in a little butter and added to a half cupful of cooked rice which has been moistened with a little cream sauce. Cover with fine crumbs, add a piece of butter to each pepper and set into a hot oven to brown. For a more savory dish, prepare a hamburger steak in a loaf with a border of small buttered onions on a hot platter and garnish with the peppers.

Onion Relish.—Take one large onion, grated, one-half cupful of celery juice, one teaspoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful of salt, ten drops of tabasco sauce, four well-beaten egg yolks balanced with the salt and mustard, two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, one teaspoonful of mustard seed, twenty capers finely minced and one-fourth cupful of good vinegar. Shake well and serve with game.

Brussels Sprouts Piquant.—Soak a quart of brussels sprouts in salted water for fifteen minutes, then drain and boil in salted water until tender. Place in a buttered baking dish and pour a highly seasoned tomato sauce with grated cheese over the top. Set in the oven to brown.

Potato croquettes are most appetizing and may be prepared from leftover mashed potatoes. Add an egg, a little minced parsley and mold; dip into egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Tasty Foods.

At this time of the year prepare some baked pears for dessert. Wash and place the pears to bake with sugar, butter and lemon juice, basting often until the fruit is tender and well browned. Serve cold or hot with cream.

Barbecued Ham.—Soak two thin slices of ham in lukewarm water half an hour. Drain, wipe and cook in a hot frying pan until brown. To the fat in the pan add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one teaspoonful of mustard, one-half teaspoonful of sugar and a little paprika. When thoroughly heated pour over the ham.

Apples a la Manhattan.—Pare and core eight medium-sized apples. Cut pieces of sponge cake into rounds an inch in thickness and the size of the apple. Sprinkle the cake rounds with sugar and set into the oven until the sugar melts. Make a sirup of one cupful each of sugar and water; cook the apples very slowly in the sirup. When tender drain and put an apple on each piece of cake. Add half a glass of jelly to the sirup, cook until quite thick, then pour over the whole. Garnish with whipped cream and candied or maraschino cherries.

Tomato Jelly.—Boil a pint of tomatoes, strained, with one-eighth of a teaspoonful of cloves, a pinch of ginger and mace, allspice and mustard, a slice of onion and a sprig of parsley. Strain after cooking ten minutes, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and one envelope of gelatin. Stir until cool, then arrange in mold with cooked green peas, letting each layer set so that the peas will be scattered through the jelly. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

German Chicken Soup.—Take three quarts of chicken stock, thicken with the yolks of six eggs beaten smooth, with a cupful of cream and the juice of a lemon. Season with salt, pepper and grated nutmeg. Serve hot with croutons.

Add a teaspoonful of peanut butter to a creamed soup or sauce which has been scorching. The flavor will be disguised by the peanut butter.

Tomato Sauce.—Cook one-half can of tomatoes 15 minutes, rub through a sieve and add three tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour which have been cooked together, adding a bit of soda if the tomatoes are too acid. Brown the thickening before adding the tomatoes if the rich red color is retained. Season with salt and pepper.

Brown sauce is made by cooking butter and flour together, carefully stirring until the butter and flour are well browned. The mixture should be well browned before adding the liquid.

Hot Sardines.—Drain sardines from the oil and heat in a hot frying pan. Serve on fingers of buttered toast and garnish with lemon quarters.

MODES ASSERT CHIC OF VELVET; NOBBY TRAVEL AND TOWN COATS

WITHOUT a doubt velvet will be "the thing" for the winter season. Its constantly increasing use by leading Paris designers is assurance of its dominance among fabrics for the months to come. For instance, there's Louise Boulanger making the greater number of her dressy coats in velvet and fur, and Worth the same.

For this winter Suzanne Talbot has in her collection many velvet ensembles—dress and bonnet to match showing a superb embroidery design. Jenny makes frocks of velvet, tuning them to youth. A suit of blue velvet speckled soft chiffon velvet in a dark-green color "piped" with gold cloth.

Subtle design and color glory combine in the new woolen weaves as never before in the history of fashion, at least of American fashion. They do say that the English have known and appreciated all along the possibilities in sturdy cloths for outdoor apparel, and that we in America are only just now waking up to the fact of the infinite charm of chevrons, of tweeds and other materials of like character.

Well, if we were not awake before, we surely are now, in regard to the

with white emanates from the atelier of Agnes. Others of the haute couture are creating jacket suits for country club affairs, some all of velvet, some with contrasting skirts. Perhaps the most novel item of French origination is the velvet shawl, rectangular in shape and with long matching fringe on three sides.

Now all this, and infinitely more which could be told, bespeaks not only the tremendous vogue in sight for velvet, but it also emphasizes the versatility of velvet which ranges from sheerest transparent weaves to fancy sports prints, likewise the ver-beauty of rough surfaced woolens which carry unique patternings expressed in colorful tones. It is worth while to saunter through the sportswear sections of our larger stores and through exclusive shops, just to see "what's doing" in the way of coats and ensembles for smart town and travel wear.

The marvelous woolens which go to make up the new coats are fairly breath-taking in daring of modernistic design as expressed in artful color blendings and contrasts. See, for example, the modernistically designed coat in this picture. This lynx-fur satility of its many adaptations from sports to the exclusively formal.

For matinee and bridge women of fashion are showing much enthusiasm for the velvet ensemble, such as is shown to the left in picture above. It has a smart silver cloth blouse which looks its handsomest when the jacket is removed. Also please make a mental note of the fact that the hat worn with this costume is also of velvet in accordance with fashion's latest decree.

The season's two most popular fabrics make the coat frock to the right—trimmed model expresses the very latest for sports and travel wear. Not only is the patterning of the cloth of outstanding interest but the color scheme is captivating.

Among the last-word modes the coat of bold patterned woolen, which has an imposing collar of self-material, attracts because of its novelty and its "something different" aspect. Some of these collars are so designed as to fall into a graceful capelet effect when not doing duty up about the throat and chin.

Few Years of Poverty in Victor Hugo's Life

Unlike many great writers, Victor Hugo had a happy childhood; was a brilliant pupil, and when he fell in love, at an early age, he did not become dreamy and impractical, but worked harder than ever to achieve success.

His first experience of real tragedy came with the death of his mother. His relationship with her had been unusually intimate and tender. For several years the mother had been estranged from her husband, which had resulted in drawing her closer to her youngest son. Soon after his mother's death his father married the woman who had caused the estrangement.

The elder Hugo had no sympathy with his son's desire to write. He offered him a sufficient allowance if he would give up authorship and devote himself to a career that promised a large income. Hugo indignantly refused, and shared a Paris attic with his cousin. Here he gained the knowledge of poverty that he revealed in "Les Miserables." But he was not as poor as many young geniuses have been, nor did he know poverty for any great length of time. In 1822 he married the girl with whom he had fallen in love when he was seventeen, and this brought a reconciliation with his father.—Kansas City Times.

The Bum

An American visitor to London, in his reverence for Francis Thompson's poems, made a pilgrimage recently to the Skiddaw Arms, Kilburn, the "pub" where the author of the "Hound of Heaven" used to sit and dream by the fire in the saloon bar. The pilgrim recalled its Francis Thompson's associations to the landlord of the inn, who had never heard of him.

"Poet!" said Boniface decisively; "that sort of a customer hanging about doesn't do a house any good."

Big Industry Dates Only From Year 1867

The first Bessemer steel rail made in America was rolled by the North Chicago Rolling Mill company from steel made at Wyandotte, Mich., May 24, 1865. This was in the nature of an experiment, and but six rails were made. Two years later a similar experiment was made by a New York mill from steel made at Troy, N. Y., but it was not until August, 1867, that the Cambria Iron company began to roll Bessemer steel rails as a regular business, thus laying the foundation for a gigantic industry.

Steel rails were first made and used in England. The first steel rail was laid on the track of an American railroad in 1863, the rails having been imported from Great Britain.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then at last find relief. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

For Proper Sleep

"Too many women," says the bureau of home economics, "are satisfied if their bed has a smooth exterior, not realizing, perhaps, that sheets that pull up at the foot, or blankets that slip sideways are not conducive to unbroken rest."

"There is a special art in making a bed properly. The lower sheet should go on right side up, large hem at the head, and smoothly tucked up on all four sides, with the corners folded in miter fashion.

"The upper sheet should be put on wrong side up, so that when the hem is turned over the blankets to keep their edges clean, it will be right side up. Upper sheets and blankets should be tucked in generously at the foot first, the hem folded down, and then the sides folded in."—Kansas City Star.

A Turn-Down

Vice President Barnhart of the National Surety company of New York said the other day that the modern girl expects a man to spend $50 at least when he takes her out of an evening, whereas her mother was content with an expenditure of $5.

"The modern girl, I'm afraid, is extravagant," Mr. Barnhart went on. "A young bank clerk proposed to a modern girl the other night:

"Darling," he wound up anxiously, "you could live on $60 a week, couldn't you?"

"The girl laughed.

"Yes," she said, "but no longer."

Unable to See Into Newton's Giant Mind

While Isaac Newton was making a study of the refraction of light upon thin plates, as exemplified in the soap bubble, a neighbor woman who saw him experimenting mistook him for a trifter. "He diverts himself in the oddest ways imaginable," she said. "Every morning when the sun shines so brightly that we are obliged to draw the window blinds, he takes his seat in front of a tub of soap suds, and occupies himself for hours blowing soap bubbles through a common clay pipe and intently watching them till they burst."

Newton's acquaintances testified to his self-forgetfulness and humility. "I do not know," he said of himself, "how I may appear to the world, but to myself I seem to have been only like a boy playing on the seashore, now and then finding a smoother pebble or a prettier shell than before, while the great ocean of truth lay all undiscovered before me."—Kansas City Times.

Church Seeks Motorists

Country ministers in England are becoming more and more anxious to make the automobilist welcome at church, and more than 500 of them have offered to provide parking space for automobiles, states the secretary of the Owner-Drivers' club, in London. In many instances clergymen are offering their own grounds for parking cars, while in others suitable space close by is suggested. There are also numerous cases in which a clergyman, in offering parking facilities, adds the hope that the motorist visiting his church will make himself known after the service, so that the minister can exchange greetings.

CHAPTER XII

Garth found Joan Quarrier at the Mission school. Entering the building, he stood for a space in a doorway and watched her read to a group of Cree orphans.

As she looked up, aware of his presence, he said: "It is not February, but I have returned."

"Something is the matter?" she said, apprehensively. "What has happened at Elkwan?"

"Etienne shot himself."

"But you, why are you here? Why did you come?"

"For you."

"For me—to go to Elkwan?" Dazed at the idea, her hand sought her forehead, while the chattering children crowded curiously around them.

"He wants you. There may be infection—and you know wounds—have everything in your kit, bandages, stimulants, antiseptics."

"Let me put on my coat and we'll talk outside," she said.

So they went to the clearing.

"I know well what I'm asking," he said. "It means a day on the sled—discomfort, for you. But he is my friend, and it may mean his life—your coming."

Her troubled eyes turned to his. "I want to go—the trip is nothing. It's going, alone, with you—it means leaving the mission, I suppose."

"Of course, Swan will make a fuss. To him it will look immoral—your going—to save a man's life," he said, savagely, "but for you—an army nurse, with a life at stake," he pleaded, "is there any choice?"

She smiled wistfully as she gazed over the frozen river.

"I've got to go. It's in my blood—to help them—the wounded."

His heart leaped at the words. "To help the strong—to help me—is that in your blood, too, Joan Quarrier?" he asked passionately.

She shivered and avoided his eyes, as a wave of color swept up to her dark hair. "The strong need no help," she parried.

Again in control of himself, the elated Guthrie smothered his own emotion in this thought for the stricken friend at Elkwan, for whom he had lied to the man he respected and the girl he loved. And he wondered what she would say to him when she learned of the deception. That she would have come as readily, had he told the truth, he had no doubt, but the secret of Galbraith's presence at Elkwan was a trust, sacred, inviolate. He had told Cameron that the crew of the Ghost had died to a man. At Albany, Laughing McDonald was a dead man. On the way up the coast, Joan Quarrier should learn the truth.

"Oh, ye of little faith!" Guthrie sadly shook his head. "What must I do to convince you?"

The girl made no answer.

Looking up, Garth saw, bundled in fur cap and coat much too large for him, a short figure blocking their path.

"You are going on this mad journey?" the shrill voice of Swan demanded. "Do you hold your reputation so cheaply?"

"You have heard?"

"Yes! Mrs. Cameron has told me what this man has come for."

"You're too late, Swan, she has promised to go," said Garth quietly. Ignoring Guthrie, the little man gravely warned:

"You realize, Miss Quarrier, if you go, you cannot return to the mission?"

"Yes," Mr. Swan. Before I became a mission teacher, and my moral welfare the object of your solicitude, I lived for three years with wounded men. A man's life is at stake. It is worth more than my reputation."

To Garth she said abruptly: "Come for me when you are ready. I'll go and pack my kit."

"Bravo, Healer of Wounds! That was spoken like a soldier," and walking squarely at the mortified missionary, dazed at the flouting of his authority, who stepped into the soft snow to avoid the threatened collision, the elated Guthrie hurried to the trade-house.

"She'll go, she'll go!" he announced to the waiting factor.

"Good! You'll take good care of her, I know. I wish you the best of luck, my boy. She's a rare one—is Joan."

"Swan told her she couldn't return to the mission."

"A-ah!" contemptuously grunted the other. "We'll send over and get her belongings. She'll spend the rest of the winter with us. But she's much too valuable to the Swans for them to stick to their high horse. They'll be over trying to wheedle her into coming back."

"But I hope she won't."

"We'll see to that. Why, they didn't know how to feed a husky pup, and in charge of twenty children! Think of it! Joan turned to and taught 'em something, scientific, you know. Oh, they'll be back after her."

Guthrie grinned broadly as he said: "So will I."

"Well, I hope you get her."

Behind the slab counter Garth curled up on a bundle of blankets for a few hours' sleep, until his dogs were fit to take the ninety-mile run north to Elkwan and the sick man who, officially, had died on the Ghost.

At noon he drove his refreshed team to the mission where Joan, standing beside her duffle bags, waited in the snow.

With the light load of two passengers, the big runner sled—its wooden shoes shod with ice, which slips over a hard surface with less friction than steel and can be renewed at will, would be sport for the five powerful dogs. Driving, as he would, to bring skill and medicine to the succor of the guest at Elkwan, Garth hoped to reach the post before dawn, but much depended on the light. A thick night would slow the dogs to a walk while crossing the mouths of the big rivers, where tide cracks opened and closed over night and the trail led through hummocks and ridges, bad going by day—at night, heart-breaking to driver and dogs.

"You're not sorry—haven't regretted promising to come?" he asked, as he wrapped her in robes and stowed her bags.

She shook her head. "Not in the least, Mr. Exile. I'm reconciled now to the loss of the last shred of my reputation. It was a wild scene—in the house. They even prayed for me when they realized threats were futile."

"Prayed for you—you, bound on an errand of mercy? In the name of all the saints, they'd let an innocent man die for want of proper care, because of my reputation? I must be a monster to them."

She laughed. "Yes, I can truthfully say that after what my brother told them, they think you are a terrible person."

"Do you?" he countered, leaning over the sled.

"Well—" her dark eyes flashed up into his, "not exactly terrible, rather—what shall I say?—stubborn."

"Marche, Castor!"

And the huskies, with Shot ahead, galloped to the trade-house. There the Camerons were waiting for the girl who had, also, burned her bridges. Shortly, down the cliff trail and over the river-ice raced the team, carrying hope for Craig Galbraith, deep in delirium at Elkwan, ninety white miles away.

As they left the river and turned up the coast, Guthrie's anxious eyes circled the gray horizon for indications of what would follow the hazy-smothered sunset over the Keewatin muskeg. For days, now, the weather had softened to above zero temperature, a characteristic of James bay winters, which are milder than those of the forest country to the south, and he prayed for a bright night, as his thoughts were busy with the tragedy of Craig Galbraith and his own part in the climax of the pitiful history.

The decision he had made beside the bunk in the Ghost, once he had struck on a feasible plan of procedure, was inevitable to the man who owed his life to the heroism of the stricken Galbraith. But the situation which Guthrie faced as he watched the high barrens of Akimiski catch and hold the veiled light of the dying sun, might easily result not only in dismissal from the company but in arrest by the authorities. His clear duty to his employers had demanded that he report to Cameron the presence of Laughing McDonald at Elkwan. The information that a Hudson's bay factor had concealed from the government a man suspected of murder would raise a hornets' nest in Ottawa. All this Garth Guthrie had seen with clear vision the night before, when he shared his plan with Etienne, but as his eyes rested for an instant on the tragic face of the friend who, that day in front of Amlens, had not counted the cost, there was in his face the look of a man who would repay to the last farthing. Ottawa, the company he had served so well, were nothing. There lay Craig Galbraith, sick, hunted by the law he had defied, deserted—Laughing McDonald, whom he had fought for the trade—his friend, and he would see it through. Craig should have his chance, slight as it looked. With the woman of the great heart and the skilled hands, he was hurrying over the sea-ice as fast as five Ungavas could travel. Hold on, Galbraith, V. C. I as you held at many a disputed parapet and shell-hole!

They had talked little through the first miles, the thoughts of the man centered on his problem. With the skill of long training, she had gone into the details of Etienne's wound, and Garth had had no heart so early in their journey for a confession of his duplicity. But when, off the mouth of the Big Willow, he announced that it was time to rest the dogs and eat the supper prepared by Mrs. Cameron, he felt that, over the hot tea, Joan Quarrier should be told the facts.

With the aid of cedar kindlings carried on the sled, he soon had a fire under the teakettle.

"Do you realize how you have ignored your passenger, Mr. Exile? This is my first ride behind the dogs and I wanted to talk about them."

The huskies, except Shot, who was inspecting the willow thicket, were sprawling in their harness, sniffing hungrily at the odor of bacon. Now that he was alone with Joan, was to be alone with her through the long miles to Elkwan, Guthrie felt strangely diffident. Until he had laid the truth before her, told of the love he bore this broken thing, once feared as Laughing McDonald, waiting in such sore need of her ministrations, and received her absolution for his deception, he would feel ill at ease with the woman who faced the world with the stark truth in her eyes.

"Let me see," she went on. "I know Castor and Pollux, but that cream-colored one?"

"Oh, that's Dido," he laughed, "and the white-gray one is Aeneas."

"Aeneas? And does he run away from her like his namesake?"

"Run away? Hardly. She's the fastest dog in the team. What's more, he doesn't try. He's more constant than Virgil's hero."

"What's the name of that surly one, who growls so much?"

"Oh, that's Achilles, of course, the sulker. But he's not so much of a hero. He's deathly afraid of Castor, and Shot fought him to a standstill, once."

Pouring her a cupful of the steaming tea and making a sandwich with the bacon, he passed Joan her supper.

"My, I'm hungry! How good the tea tastes! But aren't the dogs to have some fish after their work?"

"No, they were fed this morning. If I feed them now, it would make them lazy; we wouldn't reach Elkwan before noon, and I'm worried—I'm afraid we're going to be too late as it is."

She looked up, puzzled at his tone. "Why, you said he wasn't bleeding badly—no artery involved. It's only a matter of keeping the wound clean."

The moment had come.

"I have a confession to make to you, Joan Quarrier," he began. "I have lied to you—brought you from a warm shelter up this coast tonight on false pretenses."

"False pretenses! What do you mean?" She was curious but not disturbed.

"I have been the cause of your breaking with the Swans—given the missionary people the chance to raise their saintly eyebrows in horror—for what?"

"Why, my dear man!" she protested.

ed, "I understand all that. Their prattle can't hurt me, can it? I don't understand. Where is the lie?"

He sucked in a deep breath and leaned toward her, as he said: "Etienne was not shot. You're on your way to help me save a friend—a friend who crawled with me on his back through gas and shell fire. They broke his arm and got him in the chest, but he came through. Can you guess who it is?"

Her dark brows contracted as she met the pleading look of the man standing by the fire. Slowly she shook her head. "You said Etienne was hurt. Now you say it was some one else—I don't see—"

"Laughing McDonald."

"Laughing McDonald?" she cried. "You said you found him dead on the schooner?"

"He was alive, but very sick—flu, pneumonia, I'm not sure—Etienne and an Indian took him to Elkwan while I came to ask you to go—to help—"

"He was this friend who saved your life—in France?" she asked, wide-eyed with surprise.

"Yes, Capt. Craig Galbraith. He took the name of McDonald—"

"When he disappeared after the murder?" she broke in.

"That is unworthy of Joan Quarrier," he demanded gently.

"But his description tallies with that of the man wanted in Halifax. You forget that I've seen him."

Guthrie warmed to the defense of his friend. "Suppose he is the man? Is it strange that a man branded for life with that grimace," he pleaded, "a man, proud, sensitive, coming home with the Victoria Cross—twice won—should go mad when the wife he cherished, as I know he did, turns, in horror of his scars, to a lover? Tell me, is it strange?"

"It was murder," she objected, half-heartedly.

"No, not if the man was struck in the heat of passion—as Galbraith could strike. It was retribution."

"After all, he was a gallant soldier," she mused aloud, "and he saved your life."

Ignoring the inference, Garth pressed his point, for he saw to his joy that his story had touched her. "Think what his bitterness—his agony—must have been, doomed forever to wear that mask, when the woman who should have been proud to bear his name failed him. Imagine his loneliness—his despair, when, in his need, she turned to another."

There was a mist in Joan Quarrier's eyes as she said: "You must have loved him greatly to defend him so well."

"He threw away his hope of reaching the lines, when he followed Shot to my shell-hole and started back with a gassed man; is it strange that I'm fighting for his life, oh, Healer of Wounds?"

For an instant, as he waited for her answer, she met the fierce pleading of his eyes, then looked into the thickening night as she said gently: "You have won. I'll give all I have to save him—for he was a gallant soldier—and has suffered."

Joan Quarrier did not see the pride, the gratitude, and the love that shone down on her from Guthrie's eyes.

For an hour after the stop at the Big Willow for the hot tea the weather had been gradually thickening. As the dogs followed the coast, Guthrie's restless eyes watched the murk slowly blot out the stars. It meant feeling their way past the river mouths; and, across the delta of the Attawapiskat, a sharp watch on the compass to avoid entering the river itself. Clearly caution dictated turning into the Kapiskau and spending the night at the post. But the chance of the man at Elkwan might hang on the hours saved by pushing on through the sable blanket which shrouded the coast. He turned to the girl muffled in robes on the sled behind him.

"It's not going to be cold, but a cold night with the stars would be better than this."

"How can you tell where we're going? I can't see a thing."

"I'm letting Castor pick the trail—just checking him with the compass. It has a luminous dial."

"But he can't see any more than we can."

All Sorts of Things Occupy Engaged Man

Sunday: Engagement announced in the society column.

Monday: Received calls from eighteen insurance agents, who kept him on the defensive trying to explain why he didn't recognize his added responsibilities.

Tuesday: Was interviewed by seven furniture dealers, three motor car salesmen and thirteen real estate specialists.

Wednesday: Found approximately thirty-eight pounds of mail on his desk, chiefly from florists and gift shops, with a good representation from tailors, interior decorators, greeting card handlers and seed houses.

Thursday: Held open house for seventeen miscellaneous callers who were completing follow-up campaigns.

Friday: Spent an instructive two hours perusing circulars from travel agencies. "Learned that every state and thirteen foreign countries offered honeymoon possibilities. Received professional cards from three plumbers."

Saturday: Decided to close the office early, but not before the postman left a letter from a lawyer who conveyed the information in thinly disguised fashion that he specialized in all sorts of domestic misunderstandings.—Kansas City Star.

Wrong Number

Feminine logic was demonstrated in a phone call received by a startled gentleman who picked up the instrument the other evening to hear a frenzied female voice demanding: "Is this you, Jim?"

"No," he returned politely. "You have the wrong number."

"Well, you big sap," came the voice at the other end, in snappy accents, "why the dickens don't you hang up so I can get my party? Of all the nit-wits I ever saw—why, you poor prune—" and so on, while the amused young man listened patiently to her colorful tirade.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Not All Blank Verse

In the main, "Hamlet" is written entirely in blank verse. The exceptions are the scenes in which Hamlet feigns insanity, those in which he converses with Rosencrans and Guildenstern, with the actors and with Osric and the scene with the grave diggers. All these are in prose.

Seals Once Land Animals?

Seals are probably of land origin, but have become almost perfectly adapted to life in the water. They seek land or ice floes only for breeding and rearing of young.

Slaves Were Shaved

A clean-shaven face in the East was originally a sign of servitude. Old pictures show kings and conquerors heavily bearded and with long hair, while their slaves and captives are clean-shaven and close-cropped. The Greeks and the Romans later discarded "face fungus," as it gave their enemies a hand-hold in the close fighting, which was, of course, the rule in those days.
